Interests and Disconten

Southeast Asia has undergone a significant process of regionalization in the past few decades. Under the anspices of regionalization of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN), its ten member states—Brunci, Cambodia, Indonesia, Laos, Malaysia, Myanmar, the Philippines, Singapore, Thailand and Vietnam—have made strides towards integration by coming together to cooperate on a variety of issues, such as the environment, immigration and sea patrols. The admission of East Timor "in principle" to the organization in 2022, with full membership still pending, will likely bring more synergy to the region. ASEAN's considerable success in promoting regional cooperation and development notwithstanding, the organization has faced several challenges and criticisms. In recent years, ASEAN regionalism is increasingly perceived as slow and ineffective, which in turn has cast doubts on its leadership role in the region.
